Insight/Observation: After being familiarized with creating charts like the Pie Chart, we were tasked to create a Histogram, which I used to create a visualization for the Generation variable for the Pokémon enlisted in the data sheet. Based on my observations, each bar on the histogram represents each range for data values, which inhibits the generation from being exact. This, however, seems sufficient as there are only 3 outliers as indicated in the first bar which is barely visible (the bar with range 0-1). All in all, the distribution of the Pokémon according to their respective generation is still reliable, given the approximation of the total number of each generation member noted on the vertical labels on the left.
